

Our involvement in modern office buildings includes for owner occupation and also commercial development.

As with most projects, the structure and services require complete integration whether for an air-conditioned environment or, more currently, natural ventilation.

We further believe that the selection of the structural grid and its relationship to the planning grid, has a profound effect on the spaces created and flexibility in use to be provided.

However, our overriding concern is to meet the specific requirements of the clients brief and approved cost plan, to provide the best possible working environment.
